Preamble

The video modules on this site help students to prepare for their pre-internship and career guidance.

The modules can be tested by them alone at home, or be used on project days in schools with their teachers.

Even when used in schools, the basic principle remains "working independently". Everyone should be able to discover the trade by exploring it.

Students need access to a computer with internet, and for some modules, sufficient space to test the modules. This is the case, for example, with some of the craft modules.

With other modules, students can test their knowledge directly on the platform via videos or quizzes.

GETTING STARTED

In a real internship you would get to know a company, do some typical work with guidance and under supervision. You would probably meet nice colleagues who could explain things to you. You will use some technical terms, of course. Also, if you're smart, you'll observe as much as possible. A good internship company will also let you try out some things on your own. All this you will be able to test here in our modules.
